Similarities between cats and dogs essay template pdf

Analysis of Sample Comparative Essay Now that you have read our sample comparative essay, let us take a quick look at the factors that were present within the essay and see how you can apply them on your own. Linking Words and Phrases When you are writing a comparative essay using words such as "similarly" and "likewise" to compare and words like "on the other hand" and "however" for contrasting statements as seen in the sample essay above can guide the reader through the relationship of each text. Some people may think more profoundly of cats due to the felines' intelligence, while others fancy dogs for their companionship. They have a long tail that aids in balance, and light-reflecting eyes which gives them an advantage over their prey. Cats are quick and have retracting claws for self-defense, they can jump and climb to get away from any threats. Therefore, this essay aims to look at the different personalities of your future pet and how well it may fit you. Cats are more independent than dogs and are considered loners. Some people enjoy the presence of a cat, and others are simply dog lovers. Cats are nocturnal and do the best hunting at night solitary. The Egyptians considered cats to be Gods, due to them protecting their homes from death and disease by killing rodents. When one dog greets another and that dog holds its tail up, it means they are of higher social class. Both these animals have fur, thus requiring constant grooming such as regular washing and combing, especially if you do not want to deal with fleas. Proofread and revise into perfection: It is best to do this over and over until you feel like it is your best. They are generally known to always clean after themselves and others through licking several times a day. Some of the qualities include hunting abilities, obedience, and trainability. However, there may be times it is better to look over your work with an expert. But we can look at the main differences of what makes each not necessarily a better pet than the other, but what makes each unique. To start with, pet cats are known to be very clean. The Egyptians thought so highly of their beloved felines that they mummified them for the journey to the next world- and even included mummified mice to accompany their pets. Moreover, dogs are social animals and have a tendency to fawn over every person they meet; they are known to be "man's best friend" after all. A cat does not need your love, food, or acceptance. Therefore, you do not really have to think about cleaning after a cat as much, you are most likely to just focus on their litter boxes. A dog will gladly come wagging its tail toward you if you call its name. Based on the history, characteristics, and similarities of the two creatures, dogs are considered to be man's best friend- but most likely it's the feline who is. Thousands of years ago, a man trapped wolves and used a selective breeding process to make canines with certain qualities. Fleas can cause skin allergies, prolonged scratching from all the itchiness can cause an infection, or your pet may get anemia from the loss of blood. Dogs are also more social than cats which is why some consider them the best companions. In addition to why you should groom your pet is that they shed their fur, and it gets everywhere, more so in certain seasons than others. After the massacre, there were no cats to kill rodents and this caused an outbreak of black rats which brought on the Black Death. The accusation led to the massacre of millions of cats across Europe. The end result, however, reaps better benefits toward the dog than a cat. As mentioned, dogs rely on humans a lot and are not as independent as cats; this is not particular with cleaning but with their overall behavior in general. Dogs love to run around, and they can get messy in the process, but they are not built to clean up after themselves and would heavily rely on human assistance for that. Write your essay: Every essay will include an introduction, body, and conclusion. The mother carries 3-12 babies in one litter. Humans began breeding dogs for their function. And while fleas cannot live in a human's body, they can still bite you and give you the potential side effects they give your pet. In either of these scenarios, you would use the block method wherein you enlist all the points about one and then proceed to jot down everything on the other. On the other hand, a cat has their own body language and will not necessarily acknowledge you or your guests in general; however, they find ways to entertain themselves; they do not mind playing on their own or with others. Give us your paper requirements, choose a writer and we'll deliver the highest-quality essay! Order now Felines, on the other hand, decided on their own that they would integrate with humans. Research and Citations When it comes to writing a comparative essay, you will be stating a lot of facts here and there, and both need to be backed with evidence. Throughout time, breeding became more selective, and more breeds were born. Dogs have a particular social status, their rank is determined by how high they hold their tail. A cat's independent nature means that they will only come toward you if and when they want to, and not because you have called them. Dogs and cats have several similarities, but even more distinctions. Dogs are more earthbound and not able to jump as high or climb trees such as cats. Cleaning off their hackles is no easy feat, and getting a fur roller and air purifier can add up to a lot of costs. Both canine and feline are part of the Mammalia Kingdom. Canines hunt more efficiently when they are accompanied by their pack. All cats today still harbor the same traits as their ancestors because they were not bred into exclusivity, they were perfect just how they were. While both species are carnivores, dogs can survive on plant materials if needed but cats are strict meat-eaters. The alternating method is the method used in the sample wherein you juxtapose clearly identified points between A and B, in this case, cats and dogs. Sample of a Compare and Contrast Essay Using Cats and Dogs When it comes to raising a pet, an immediate thought in a potential pet owner's mind is, "should I get a cat or a dog?" given that these are the most common pets to have. Both animals are easily loved by mankind and will display love and affection in return for good treatment. If you have the time and want a pet that has fun with the family, a dog would be the way to go. You have been tasked to write an essay to compare and contrast between two things, and this can be a difficult task for you that you might want to ask essay writing service for help instead. However, it is important to also learn how to do this on your own. Canines can show more human characteristics such as love, sorrow, and loyalty. Both cats and dogs show territorial instincts that come naturally. All cats are considered equal and do not have ranks to determine their social status. While these can be a teacher, parent, or friend, there are services that offer essay help and can edit and proofread in order to get an outsider's view of your work or even perhaps provide you with a free essay. Aside from the numerous differences, there is also a good deal of similarities. As a general rule of thumb, however, if you are a busy person, it may be better to get a cat due to their independent natures. Every dog in our modern world has the DNA of wolves, although if you look at a Yorkshire Terrier or a Teacup Chihuahua one would have their doubts. A dog will be different because they don't groom themselves. The list can go on and on between cats and dogs, and at the end of the day, some things may not fully apply because your pet just has a personality of its own. Cats only hold their tail up as a sign of content, they do not feel the need to dominate. Once you have your outline ready, it is time to write your thoughts to completion. Cats can also seem a little quieter as compared to dogs. While both cats and dogs can be trained, it is a dog that usually requires more time and training than a cat, so you spend a lot of time caring for it and telling them what's wrong from right. Both dogs and cats birth multiple offspring at one time. While dog lovers will love their dogs unconditionally, it cannot be denied that a cat's purr and meow is nothing compared to a dog's woof. First, let us begin with the similarities of these creatures and how to properly care for them. The lifespan of these two creatures ranges an average of twelve years, and up to twenty-five for cats and eighteen for dogs. Some canines were great for hunting, while others did the best job of herding or guarding. Need a custom essay on the same topic? The more research you put into, the stronger the weight of your statements will be Alternating Method vs Block Method There are two ways to write a comparative essay, the alternating method and the block method. But in general, both pets are adorable and have their own charm that makes you fall in love with them on your own. Wherein, this contrast essay will help guide you on how to write your own comparative essay. Brainstorm similarities and differences: Once you have researched, it is important to jot all your thoughts down, let your brain overflow with your ideas. In this scenario, we will use cats and dogs wherein we contrast both cats and dogs as a point of comparison. Felines are the ultimate hunters and voluntarily gave up their life in the wild to save man from rodent infestations and the plague, and cats know it. Contrast cats who might just acknowledge you by moving its ears to indicate you have been heard, stare at you, or even ignore you altogether. Felines only seek companionship from other cats when mating. This is because, at the end of the day, it really does matter if you are a cat person or a dog person. According to a study by PetFood Industry, when it comes to international pet ownership, out of a survey of 27,000 people globally, 33% were dog owners while 23% were cat owners, making them the most popular pets in the world. However, despite our four-legged friends being widely accepted and sharing a lot of similarities, these are two different animals with two very different traits. In the sample above, to prove that dogs and cats were commonly used as pets, a source was cited in the essay. The canine and feline alike have the ability to survive in the wild if needed, their natural hunting instinct would employ before being left to starve to death. Both canines and felines are covered in fur and can carry fleas and ticks if not treated by the owner. Fleas can also possibly transmit other parasites such as tapeworms to your pet and even aggravate any respiratory illnesses or complications. A characteristic of the female in the Mammalia Kingdom is that they have mammary glands, which allows the mothers to nurse their young. In the middle ages, Pope Gregory IX associated cats with Satan and witches. This is usually a preferred method as it looks more integrated and analytical. However, not all points can be directly compared because nothing closely relates to the other, or you might want to build up more points about one than the other, or perhaps you are comparing more than the usual two things. Recommendations for Writing a Comparative Essay Just like all other essays, the main ingredients to writing a comparative essay would be to: Research: Whether it be a library or online, gathering resources to provide evidence and give you further ideas is a very critical step. Outline how to layout the text: Once you have let your thought bubbles burst all over the place, it is now time to organize those thoughts, see what part fits where, and how you can correlate your research into each subject matter. Aside from this, though, the only other similarity cats and dogs bring their love and affection for their humans. In terms of differences, however, it can be a really long list. They are entertained by attention and people and just love playtime, going out, and having fun together. Plagiarism: Once you are done writing your essay, given that you have taken your content off of numerous pages, it is still highly important to ensure the uniqueness of your work and not something that is directly copy/pasted as it constitutes as plagiarism and can be considered a grave offense. But as far as cleaning goes, you can depend on them to do it themselves. They enjoy spending time away from humans and do not get lonely, whereas a dog would.
